Academic Results

CRANBROOK

Message from the Headmaster

HSC results are, of course, of strong interest to members of the school community: they tell you a great deal about aspects of our culture and performance.

HSC results are, of course, of strong interest to members of the school community: they tell you a great deal about aspects of our culture and performance. Cranbrook's 2016 HSC candidates achieved very impressive and pleasing marks which have enabled them to open doors into further rich educational and experiential opportunities.

This booklet profiles some of our top performers and illustrates the fact that, at Cranbrook, you can achieve a vital balance between academic success and personal breadth: as you will read, their stories tell us of deep involvement in the performing and creative arts, sporting endeavour, service-related activity, outdoor education, intellectual pursuits and building community. We do not produce narrow, brittle, spoonfed candidates but we value and elevate empathy, generosity of spirit and humane warmth.

Cranbrook is not a school which operates a highly academically selective admissions policy. We like breadth – in part because we believe that it offers a healthier and more realistic preparation for life beyond school. And, therefore, some of the performances we are most proud of are achieved by those who have scored less than 99 but who have travelled a great distance with us and lifted their horizons. We celebrate the fact that our median ATAR in 2016 was 88.05 and that 30 of our boys registered ATARs of over 95. And we note that many of the significant benefits of a great liberal education will not translate directly into a statistical return but will be valuable both for their own sake and for the polishing of prospects and opportunities they will bring to our students.

This booklet will, then, give important information about the HSC – but will not tell the whole story of school life, which is designed to elevate compassion, companionship, conversation and a love of the pursuit of excellence.
